

I'm speaking at BriForum London this year!

EUC Isn't All about the Technology. It's About Users, Too

More often than not, EUC projects focus on the technology involved (limitations, functionality, restrictions) rather than the user experience, which is, of course, what matters most. In my session, we will go beyond the technology involved in your EUC project, and discover key design considerations that can affect the end users' experience, including desktop assessments, employee interviews, selecting departmental champions, and carefully completing a proof of concept and a staged rollout.
